

BUSINESS ANALYST, HEALTH EVOLUTION FORUM

Location Flexible – Hiring Immediately

About Us

Health Evolution brings together a passionate community of chief executives, presidents, founders, board chairs, policymakers, and other top industry leaders. We engage our community by convening in-person gatherings, publishing insights, and analyzing information that helps industry leaders accelerate progress, develop opportunities, and shape new strategies. We support executives seeking to create a high quality and efficient healthcare system based on prevention, affordability, access, equity, and outcomes for people and their communities.

The Health Evolution Forum is a new virtual and in-person collaboration among nearly 200 Fellows—CEOs and executives of payer, provider, and life sciences companies and other thought leaders—designed to drive near-term, industry-wide impact in health care. The Forum consists of Roundtables of 50-100 Fellows focused on broad areas of change, which then form Work Groups of 15-20 Fellows to work on narrow topics to generate specific and actionable reports and recommendations. Current Roundtables and their respective Work Groups include the following:

Roundtable on New Models of Care Delivery

- Leveraging Value-Based Purchasing to Increase Health Care Value and Resilience
- Reinventing Primary Care and Preventative Care Models
- Advancing Innovative Home-Based Chronic Care Models

Roundtable on Next Generation IT in Health Care

- Governance and Use of Patient Data in Health IT Products
- Digital Health and App Experience

Roundtable on Community Health and Advancing Health Equity

- Leveraging Data to Improve Health Equity
- Building Sustainable Models and Community Partnerships to Address Social Determinants of Health

About the Role

Business Analysts are responsible for conducting and presenting insightful best practices analyses to leading health care executives. Some specific duties include:

- Interviewing health care leaders, conducting and analyzing in-depth surveys, and performing reviews of secondary research to identify best practices for health care organizations

- Preparing and presenting final presentations, recommendations, and reports to leading healthcare executives and thought leaders
- Supporting communications with Fellows and the logistics for Roundtable and Work Group meetings through collaboration with the Marketing & Operations team

What We're Looking For

We are looking for candidates with strong analytical abilities, preferably with meaningful background in healthcare. Some specific things we are looking for include:

- Experience: You have 1-3 years of experience in business research, consulting, strategy, or similar roles in the health care industry. Experience at a health care best practices advisory firm and/or with the specific Work Group topics mentioned above is a major plus.
- Passion for healthcare: You are intellectually curious and have a very strong interest in understanding and developing tackling complex, cross-industry challenges in healthcare.
- Entrepreneurial drive: You have a demonstrated ability to own a problem and aggressively drive from problem statement to solution in a self-sufficient capacity; you operate with a sense of urgency and can excel in an execution-focused startup environment.
- Exceptional problem-solving capability: You have a proven track record of solving complex problems using data and business judgment, thinking creatively, and using data to tell a story to influence stakeholders.
- Communication skills: You're an excellent and structured verbal and written communicator with effective presentation and platform skills and with the ability to synthesize large amounts of information into concise summaries.
- Strong core values: You demonstrate integrity, collaboration, a no-limits mindset, objectivity, and consistent results.
